Title: Providence University Regulations on Handling Student Enrollment and Curriculum in a Department Suspending Admissions

Version: 01

Latest amendment: 01/10/2007

Providence University Regulations on Handling Student Enrollment and Curriculum in a Department Suspending Admissions

Adopted at the Academic Affairs Meeting on January 10, 2007

Article 1. The Providence University Regulations on Handling Student Enrollment and Curriculum in a Department Suspending Admissions are established to process the relevant issues after the suspending admission of a department.

Article 2. The issues on the enrollment and credits of the retake and makeup courses and students' enrollment status are subject to these regulations.

Article 3. The University should assist the returning students of the department suspending admission to transfer into the adequate department, grade, and academic system. The issues of tuition and graduation criteria are subject to the regulations of the transfer-in department and the academic system.

Article 4. The acceptance of credits is subject to the University Regulations on Credit Transfer and the Regulations on the Credit Transfer of Professional Subjects stipulated by the respective departments.

Article 5. The regulations on the required, retake, or makeup subjects for the returning students and students with deferred graduation are as follows:

A. If there are no adequate courses for registration, students may take cross-university, cross-academic system, or cross-department courses of the similar nature with prior approval of the enrolled department.

B. The retake or makeup courses in the preceding paragraph include courses taken in Summer Session and cross-university summer studies.

Article 6. These Regulations shall enter into force upon the approval of the Academic Affairs Meeting; the same procedure applies to the amendments.
